Motivational Presentation:

Eliminating Anger and Stress in the Workplace

Terry Stueck's background as a missionary pastor and recovery counselor give him a unique perspective to deliver the 1st century truths of the Christian life that are the POWER of the Gospel to totally transform lives. These principles hold true for every person no matter their spiritual maturity or persuasion if they will but follow the concepts. Terry's eye opening presentations to corporations and non-profits motivate and enlighten the audiences to new goals and heights they previously had never dreamed existed. His basic presentation of the principles provides a framework upon which an individual can ultimately cure anger. Bringing the stress of life into a new perspective can help transform the most difficult case into a life of peace with others. The listener is able to set new personal goals that change the inner person. Attendees report a peace with themselves that transfers to peace with others. When members of an audience clearly see the higher intent for their lives and are given the tools to meet that goal, they are able to accomplish that objective and raise the bar to a new standard in their relationship with others.
